

At American Wire Group, operational excellence isn't just a promise—it's a standard upheld by a dedicated team of industry professionals with decades of experience in power utilities and renewable energy.

Our national footprint includes three strategically located distribution centers across the United States—in California, Texas, and Pennsylvania. These high-capacity facilities are purposefully positioned to serve every major region, ensuring dependable access to our industry-trusted solutions that your projects demand—wherever they are.

Every facility is equipped to support the needs of today's power infrastructure and tomorrow's clean energy transition. Each facility carries enough stock to fulfill the requirements of a 200 MW renewable energy project without delay or backorders.

With logistics built around speed and reliability, we fulfill and ship stock orders for delivery within one to two days nationwide. That means fewer delays, greater schedule certainty, and the confidence that your materials will arrive exactly when you need them. At AWG, we understand that time is critical in the energy sector—and our infrastructure is designed to keep your project on track.

We proudly maintain one of the largest inventories in the U.S.. From medium-voltage cable and fiber to grounding, control, and hardware, our materials are ready to support the demands of a rapidly evolving grid—helping our partners stay ahead of schedule, within budget, and fully compliant.
